Meet the Golfing Cows

Carl Potgieter
Cappy Moo

He hits the ball so short that you can still see the number when it's finished rolling but boy can he putt! Carl has lost more than 100kgs to get ready for this event.

Brent Lyall
Smashy Moo

Hit it miles and take it from there. Brent is the other B Division golfer in the group. He works hard on his game and you can expect him to make lots of birdies.

Werner Theart
Gymy Moo

One of the most capped provincial players ever. The best golfer in the gang. This chap can play!

Rob Larsen
Lefty Moo

The team's resident lefty and qualified rules official. Having returned to the amateur ranks, he will be handing out some lessons.

Background

Who are The Nomads? Nomads is an international golf club that was established in South Africa in 1960. There are 12 clubs across South Africa and clubs in Swaziland, Zambia, Zimbabwe, Botswana, Australia, New Zealand and the United Kingdom. One of the objectives is to raise funds for 'those less fortunate than ourselves.' One of the things that binds Nomads together is the collective spirit displayed by all members. Since inception Nomads has raised in excess of R50 million for various beneficiaries.

Who are The Cows? The Cows were started in 2008 by a group of eight enthusiastic cyclists keen to make a difference by raising funds for the CHOC Childhood Cancer Foundation. The founder members joined Kerrin and Grant Bain in cycling the 947 Cycle Challenge in memory of their 20-month-old daughter, Jessica, who they had lost to cancer. As CHOC had played a significant role in the Bain family's life, the decision was to make CHOC the sole beneficiary of their quest. They decided to don cow suits (because that was the only animal suit they could hire 8 of!) and they succeeded in raising R230K. The Cows have just broken through the R32 million mark of funds raised for specific projects implemented by CHOC, and The Cows brand is prominent in many sporting events in South Africa. With these funds, CHOC is able to make a difference to the children with cancer throughout South Africa.
